The Show Must Go On

Wallendas

Death Defied Again

DETROIT (AP)—Herman Wallenda and his son Gunther performed Wednesday night on the same high wire from which two aerialists of the Great Wallendas troupe fell to their death Tuesday night.

The 60-year-old Herman and his 34-year-old son teamed up with aerialist Jean Mendez, who was flown in Wednesday to fill the Shrine Circus gap left by the tragedy that befell the Wallendas.

Besides the two killed, three others of the Wallenda troupe, which dates its beginning back to 1780, were all injured; one of them is near death.

Mendez was first Wednesday on the high wire three stories above the concrete floor of the Fairgrounds Coliseum in Detroit. He was followed by Herman, and then Gunther Wallenda.

Gunther rode a bike across the wire and teamed up with Mendez to carry Herman standing on a cross bar between them. In the finale, Herman stood on his head on the bar.

A crowd of approximately 5,000 gave the trio a howling ovation.

The Wallendas were a part of the matinee performance. At first, producer Al DeBrecht said they couldn't go on the high wire "not today, or tonight, maybe tomorrow."

But they persisted and DeBrecht finally agreed they could go on.

Escondale Fire Kills Man

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—Fire broke out in an annex of the colony farm at the provincial mental hospital at Escondale last night, causing the death of one patient and evacuation of 123 others from the burning building.

Died in Stanley Pearce, 68, who apparently died of asphyxiation in the smoke-filled Riverside annex. He had been a patient at the institution since 1949.

Staff at the hospital evacuated the other 123 male patients in less than four minutes. No injuries were reported.

More Rally To UN Aid

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Denmark, Norway and Sweden informed Acting Secretary-General U Thant Wednesday that they will buy more than $10,000,000 worth of UN bonds to help ease the financial crisis of the world organization.

The total pledged by the three Scandinavian governments is more than twice their share of the regular UN budget under the approved scale of assessments.

Canada has already pledged to buy $6,240,000 worth of the bonds, which corresponds to the Canadian assessment in the regular budget.

The action followed President Kennedy's message to Congress Tuesday asking for

'Fresh Look'

Lord's Day Act Changes Called

TORONTO (CP)—The Lord's Day Alliance, in a brief to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, has called for a sweeping modernization of the Lord's Day Act.

The brief, presented to the prime minister last Friday and made public Wednesday, proposes:

- That the amount of advertising by broadcasting be regulated in fairness to "other media of advertising which may not engage in Sunday business."

- That "Dominion law" take cognizance of the volume of public opinion in favor of Sunday sport and entertainment and make provision for it.

- That consideration be given to the development of long-distance trucking "and also to automation in manufacturing, vending, etc., which is being accelerated in these times."

NEW APPROACH

The need for "fresh attention to Sunday law" becomes apparent, the brief says, "when note is made of the fact that the Lord's Day Act deals with such minor matters as hiring a small boat or a horse and carriage but has nothing to say about aeroplanes, or trucks, or radio and television broadcasting."

The Empty Chair

Cuba Expulsion Unites Council

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—Twenty of the 21 countries in the Organization of American States—all but Cuba—signed a document Wednesday night condemning Premier Castro's Cuban regime.

The final act pulled the OAS—minus Cuba—back together again after the United States had won only a bare majority of 14 to bar Cuba from OAS functions.

Uruguay's foreign minister, Homero Martinez Montero, then closed the 10-day conference of OAS foreign ministers after the final act was approved 20 to 0.

The 6,000-word document, drafted in the heat of prolonged and sometimes bitter negotiations, included an order to the OAS council in Washington to act at once to expel Cuba away from the OAS. This step was backed by the 14-nation majority.

But all 20 countries that sat here to judge Cuba put their names to the condemnation of Castro's regime as incompatible with the American system. Castro's delegation walked out in the closing hours of the session and flew off to Havana.

DEFEAT FOR U.S.

Chiefs to Be Taught How to Be Chiefs

DUNCAN—The University of British Columbia will team up with the federal government to teach Indian chiefs how to be Indian chiefs.

Two women and a man representing UBC's extension department and the Indian affairs branch of the citizenship and immigration department will undertake the "leadership workshop" for chiefs and band councillors later this month.

Main objects of the workshop, according to officials, will be to teach chiefs and councillors their functions and show them how to manage Indian affairs.

'Faith Healer Failed to Rid Rooming House of the Devil'

MONTREAL (UPI)—Medora Martin, 57, told a court yesterday she paid a faith healer, $400 to rid her rooming house of evil spirits, but that the Devil is still there.

Mrs. Martin denied she had ever told Leopold St. Pierre that the house was cursed. She said she went to St. Pierre's office and said among other things that she had a rooming house and that she had difficulty getting good roomers.

She said St. Pierre, who maintains a downtown office to see "sufferers," looked at the four corners of the house and announced that the curse had been put there by two women and that it would take $1,200 to chase the curse of the Devil from this house.

"And I suppose you still own the house and the Devil is still in residence there?" said Judge John O'Meara.

"I still own the house and as far as I know the Devil is still there," she answered with a smile.

Officials Goof

Fired Man Gets Pension

OTTAWA (CP)—A 27-year-old corporal fired as an "administrative nuisance" was granted a life pension worth $27,000.

This was one of a number of irregularities disclosed by Auditor General Maxwell Henderson in his report to Parliament covering the 1960-61 fiscal year.

Some others:

- The defence production department paid $62,000 for storage space in which nothing was stored.
- A high speed wind tunnel project begun in 1954 at an estimated cost of $3,750,000 is now likely to cost $9,000,000 and is still not complete.
- Three RCAF aircraftmen opened the wrong valves and 167,000 gallons of aviation gasoline worth $44,900 drained away down a manhole.

Money Down Drain

A war veteran with an income of $33,000 a year was granted a $15,179 loan under the Veteran's Land Act "to consolidate his loan."

A woman civil servant who lied about her age, worked for five years beyond retirement age, got the benefit of an increased pension, retired in December of 1960, and was rehired a month later at the age of 70.

A $42,000,000 acreage payment to Prairie farmers, voted by Parliament "as a higher return for wheat used for human consumption in Canada," was paid to growers irrespective of whether their land was planted to wheat, oats or barley or was left in summer fallow.

An "airnick" 37-year-old pilot was granted a pension worth $69,000 after being retired "by reason of having become disabled."

U.S. to Probe 'Astonishing War Hoard'

Kennedy Halts New Purchases

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy announced yesterday he has initiated a full-scale investigation of how the United States built up an "astonishing" $7,700,000,000 stockpile of strategic materials—nearly twice the amount needed for a major war.

He told a news conference the "excessive" hoard of raw materials like aluminum and nickel is "a potential source of...unconscionable profits."

Asked whether there was any suggestion of wrongdoing by any individual, the president replied thoughtfully:

"No, I am not making any implication. I think the whole matter should be looked into—contracts and all the rest, profits and so on...it is a matter which lends itself to a careful scrutiny."

PURCHASES STOPPED

Kennedy said he has halted new purchases for the defence stockpile, except for three items which are still critically short. He did not identify these.

PROBE CALLED

In a volunteered statement at the opening of the news conference, he said a special Senate committee, headed by Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), has agreed to conduct a full investigation of the situation "without delay."

COLD FACTS

"The cold facts on this matter must be open to the public," Kennedy said.

While he did not pinpoint the time when the "excessive" stockpile purchases were made, Kennedy said he began "looking into" the matter after he took office last year.

ESTIMATES EXCEEDED

He said he made the "astonishing" discovery that the material already stockpiled exceeds present estimates of emergency requirements by $3,400,000,000. In some cases, he said, the government had acquired seven times the amount of material that could possibly be used, even in war conditions.

Kennedy promised that the government will take no action regarding the stockpile which might upset or disrupt current commodity market prices for raw materials involved.

RUSSIAN WELCOMED

Among the 420 newsmen at the conference was Russian Alexei Adzhubel, editor of Izvestia and a son-in-law of Soviet Premier Khrushchev. Kennedy took note of his presence, and welcomed him.

Finger Hunt Pays Off

Emergency cars made double runs in each of two accidents yesterday—both times to recover missing finger-tips lost by two boys in separate accidents.

Shortly before 3 p.m. Teddy Cook, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Cook, 225 Robertson, lost the tip of a finger when he caught it in a door at home. He and his mother were rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital by city police.

HOME AGAIN

Almost immediately, another police car sped back to the house, found the missing fingertip and took it to the hospital.

CHURCH MISHAP

Last night, finger all stitched together, young Teddy was home again.

At about 8:25 p.m. Jim Bugslag, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Bugslag, 1401 Oliver, lost part of his finger when it was caught between two kitchen carts in the hall of Oak Bay United Church.

The Oak Bay Fire Department emergency car took him to the same hospital and hurried back to the hall where the missing tip was found on one of the carts.

This was also rushed back to the hospital emergency ward, but a hospital spokesman said the part was too small for a successful suturing job, so Jim was admitted for a skin graft operation. His condition is satisfactory.

U.S. Ad Men Softened Warnings About Drugs

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. Senate drug investigators said Wednesday a New York advertising agency softened warnings about drugs that might cause blood disorders and certain male characteristics in female babies.

Chairman Estes Kefauver of the Senate antitrust subcommittee said the ad agency, L. W. Frohlich, Inc., "very substantially modified a warning that extended use of chloromycetin, a high-selling antibiotic, could lead to serious blood disorders."

Herman Schwartz, subcommittee counsel, said the agency failed to say in some ads for the drug norlutin that it could produce male features in the genitals of female babies.

30 Paintings To Bring $2,000,000

LONDON (AP)—Arthur W. Maughan's multi-million dollar collection of French paintings has been flown here from his Riviera home to be auctioned off in April.

The 30 paintings have been valued at more than $2,000,000. Experts expect one of them, Picasso's "Death of a Harlequin," to bring at least $250,000.

Good in Principle

CITY COUNCIL'S parks committee has recommended that all rental fees and floodlighting costs be waived for amateur sports organizations using the enclosed parks, where they can charge admission. In principle, this proposal appears to have much merit.

As Alderman Michael Griffin has noted, the federal government plans to spend $5,000,000 to encourage amateur sport and physical fitness, and it would be appropriate for Victoria to show a similar interest in fostering participation in athletic pursuits. The waiving of rentals and other charges undoubtedly would do much to encourage amateur teams now having difficulty meeting expenses.

Furthermore, the city has been receiving only about $3,000 in rental fees, an inconsequential sum in comparison with its total parks department budget of more than $400,000.

But there are ramifications that city council will have to consider when the committee's recommendation comes before it.

One is that the action would be bound to result in discrimination. The taxpayers of Victoria could not be expected to subsidize professional games, and someone would have to draw the line between amateur and professional, a difficult line to draw fairly. Nor could teams now playing in unenclosed parks reasonably be denied the opportunity if they wished to play in Royal Athletic or MacDonald Parks and charge admission; the awarding of priorities could be an awkward problem.

If amateur baseball, softball, soccer, football and rugby were thus aided, moreover, what of basketball and hockey and badminton for instance? Could the city fairly subsidize outdoor games and not give free use of Memorial Arena—already operating at a deficit—to amateur athletes?

Finally, there is sure to arise the question of Victoria taxpayers bearing the cost alone although the teams encouraged and aided would be from all parts of Greater Victoria.

It may be that none of these problems is insurmountable, especially the last which should provide an inviting field for intermunicipal co-operation. But certainly they will have to be balanced against the merits of the parks committee's proposal.

A Gallant Experiment

ON THIS DAY across Canada a new search for international peace is launched—a search which, if successful, could bring lasting benefits to all mankind.

Led by Dr. Norman Alcock, an internationally-renowned nuclear physicist, a number of prominent Canadians have banded together to form the Canadian Peace Research Institute, an organization which during the first week in February is appealing to the public for $2,000,000 in private donations to match a similar grant from the federal government in order to carry out its program of studies.

If it achieves its financial goal the institute will employ 50 full-time scientific researchers and auxiliary help and open a crash research program into the causes and prevention of war, and the relief of international tensions.

Guided by no airy-fairy committee of professional do-gooders, the institute is directed by such realists as Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, former director general of the UN Technical Assistance Administration; Dr. G. Brock Chisholm, former director general of the World Health Organization; Dr. Frank Joubin, international authority on uranium exploration; Rt. Rev. James S. Thomson, former Moderator of the United Church of Canada; Dr. Kenneth Boulding, former head of McGill University Department of Economics; and Mrs. Helen Tucker, past chairman of the United Nations Association UNESCO committee.

If the institute gets the support it needs, it will undertake a number of projects, including a scientific study of the development of safeguards against accidental nuclear war and an analysis of the psychological barriers to disarmament and to a world authority.

It also hopes that similar institutions will be set up in other countries of the world so that there will develop a free international exchange of information and thought.

With such an objective supported by such distinguished and capable Canadians, the institute's fund-raising campaign has every hope of succeeding. Here in Victoria, one of the ten Canadian cities selected as key points in the campaign, the goal is set at $30,000.

This all-Canadian idea opens up a new and practical avenue of approach to the world's major problems. True, it will doubtless fall foul of extremists and critics of every color—particularly those who see a Communist behind every move towards peace.

However, such detractors should not be allowed to hamper what is, after all, but a gallant experiment and one which might well succeed where others have failed.

The Ticklish Topic

MR. PEARSON must have noted the latest debate on the national flag question with, perhaps, some dismay. The motion to launch a study on a distinctive Canadian flag was talked out. One MP said this was a topic which could invite more disunity than a conscription measure.

The recurring flag issue has been a ticklish proposition for two decades now, but recently Mr. Pearson has seemed to be making it his own.

It formed a prominent part of a radio interview he gave not long ago, when he quite specifically implied that he favored a new national flag and that if elected his government would do something about choosing one. He made mention for instance that this would appease Quebec sentiment, and even left the impression that the Quebec members of his cabinet would have the deciding voice in its design.

It was a Quebec MP, incidentally, who offered the motion that this week was talked out in Parliament. There isn't any doubt that if brought to the fore the flag question could cause more national controversy than almost any other subject. The Liberals have always depended on Quebec as their bulwark while in office, and Mr. Pearson is leaving no stone unturned to bring Quebec voters back into the Liberal fold. His toying with the national flag is a pointer, and the only kind of flag Quebec wants is one that omits the Union Jack.

One rather suspects however that in the unlikely event of his becoming prime minister this would be one subject of which little more would be heard. The "before and after" of elections often differ markedly.

"These remarks of yours: 'Smoke 60 a day—'Drink 1½ bottles of Scotch a day—'Take Shirley Bassey to the flicks six nights a week.' We can assume you're joking of course!"

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships,
and sealing wax ...

BY TOM TAYLOR

THERE are various types of courage, as the VC records alone amply testify.

There is the explosive, hot-blooded disregard of danger; there is the dour, dogged stolidity that won't give in even when all seems lost; there is the calculated risk or the cold-blooded acceptance of peril.

Fearlessness comes into the picture, although if a person is so constituted that he simply doesn't know what fear is, he is not brave in quite the same sense. The biggest hero, I suppose, is the man who goes forward even though his knees are shaking.

Stoicism and nerves of steel are part of the red badge of courage, and I should imagine that these are inherent in the stoutness of astronaut John Glenn as he awaits the climax of his projected journey into space. Because of repeated postponements his is a long drawn-out test, especially one of mental strain.

Once geared to a pitch of venturesome action it takes an exceptional man to repress himself to the same line.

Another kind of courage is reported in the public prints these days, what you might call the innocent or nonchalant type, about a fellow they are calling Richard the Lion-Hearted. The original of this ilk was wont to carry a sword but the smallish chap in question—another example of question—small bulk—depends only on a swagger stick.

And, of course, a cool contemptuous disdain of danger. It is the latter that must have overawed the crowds only too ready to tear him to pieces.

This British army officer repeatedly has gone into Congolese villages, unarmed except for his little stick, to rescue survivors from the massacres that indicate what a white people are up against in the Dark Continent.

Dark it certainly is, in more ways than one.

All he needed to complete the legendary picture of British officers in native lands was a monocle. It even more than the stick is a symbol of nonchalance that can't be downed if puzzled enough to stay anyone's hand.

There is a lot to be said, you know, for the officer who goes into battle armed only with a stick. True enough it won't be much good if he meets an opponent armed with a tommy gun, except that it might paralyze him by its sheer audacity.

And, of course, a swagger stick is a tremendous morale booster to the men he is leading.

Major Dick Lawson hasn't been leading any men in his forays into hostile Congolese camps; usually he went alone, depending on his inebriated air, his gloves probably, and the stick that indicates superiority and a supreme contempt of danger.

It's a fact that he had more than swagger behind him, for he pugged the nose of a native who tried to stab him with an arrow and who can blame him—but it would be his nonchalance that pulled him through.

It was the visible expression of his lion heart.

There are some people in the world you have to admire; the men who exhibit courage each in his own way. John Glenn and Dick Lawson are currently two of the finest.

Police Can Do Little

AN ARMY PATROL moved along a grubby little street in the poor white Bab El Oued district of Algiers, searching everyone for arms.

They found an empty pistol magazine on a sad-faced little European and arrested him—or tried to. A youth ran to a cafe to warn the local chief of the Secret Army Organization (OAS) and the rescue operation began.

Within minutes some 200 civilians were milling around the patrol, arguing with the lieutenant, pushing the bewildered conscript soldiers. It was lunch time, and families in every flat around swarmed on to their balconies to scream insults at the troops, and to shout "Algerie Française!"

A lorry arrived with reinforcements of gendarmes, but the crowd merely increased its protests. A soldier, made a threatening gesture with a sub-machine gun and a civilian, with a show of heroics, opened his coat, thrust out his chest, and dared the soldier to shoot him.

At that moment the prisoner slipped away and ran up a side street. The lieutenant chased and caught him, but despite the efforts of about 25 well-armed security troops, with a lorry and a jeep, the prisoner escaped again.

Next day the French authorities here announced 10 new security measures, including closing main streets and roads, searching houses night and day, checking car numbers, imposing a 30 m.p.h. speed limit and banning motor traffic after 9 p.m. They did not say how the measures would be enforced. There are already about 70,000 troops stationed in the Algiers area, but arresting a man in Bab El Oued is a major operation.

Falling strong reinforcements of troops experienced in crowd handling and determined to enforce order, the new measures seem likely to have no more than nuisance value. They are not enough to put an end to the different forms of terrorism which have killed well over 400 people in Algiers.

The Pack

Pretty Awful

By GREGORY CLARK

THOSE of us who are of the age at which we do not expect to be here twenty years from now are free to amuse and entertain ourselves by speculating on what the world is going to be like in another two decades.

For example, there are sounds now generally accepted as being music which certainly would not have been tolerated by either the public or even the majority of musicians twenty years ago. Such howling hooting and wailing as passes for singing in the great majority of popular recordings today, as compared with, say, Bing Crosby's cautious "vuh-vuh-vuh" innovations of twenty years ago, permit us to imagine some pretty awful noises by 1982.

If jazz and pop bands progress for the next twenty years at the rate and in the direction they have come in the past twenty, the thumping and banging of drums—the slightly off-key howling of saxophones, together with whatever new noises they can think up, will make the 1962 something to look forward to for those who have it.

Algiers: City Out of Control

By WILLIAM MILLINSHIP, from Algiers

Unlike Oran, the collapse of law and order here is not immediately apparent. Greater Algiers has a population of 1,100,000, including 800,000 Muslims. Racial segregation has begun, but the two communities still mix in the streets of the city centre. The Europeans are conscious of the fact that they are outnumbered, and in December, 1960, learned what could happen when Muslim crowds were aroused. A racial clash on a large scale between the two communities could occur, but the Europeans seem unlikely to provoke it with the same thoughtlessness as the insane mobs of Oran. The underground Secret Army is well organized here. Murders are committed by killers and not by lynching mobs.

It is gang warfare, in which the European crowds participate only when ordered to do so. The waiting siren of an ambulance is a familiar sound in Algiers, but it is possible to live in the city for days without hearing a shot.

But this appearance of order is deceptive, for the authorities do not control the population. The Muslims obey the nationalist FLN. The Europeans take their orders from the OAS. The local police for the most part sympathize with the European underground, which has agents at all levels in the administration.

Police brought from France to track OAS killers work against overwhelming odds, because the killers are protected by the population. About 80 per cent of the Europeans, officials estimate, support the Secret Army. Against this massive hostility the police can do little and are in constant danger. Thirty-two policemen have been murdered in Algiers in the past six weeks.

The authorities, imprisoned in their new administrative centre at Rocher Noir, 35 miles from here, refuse to take the measures required to re-establish control over the cities of Algeria. They are afraid of bringing the economy to a halt, and of building up pressure that would hasten an explosion. Neither are they willing to order security forces to fire on Europeans as freely as they do on Muslims.

Officials, powerless to regain their control, hope to avoid a serious incident until a cease-fire agreement is signed between France and the Algerian nationalists. Then, they speculate without great conviction, the guarantees obtained from the FLN will measure the Europeans and reduce their hostility to Algerian independence. If, as most officials believe likely, an agreement provokes a violent reaction from the OAS it is assumed that the army will open fire if necessary to maintain control.

One officer I spoke to was less sure of army loyalty. He said that OAS chiefs, many of them ex-officers, still have close contacts with some sections of the army. A counter-attack, if launched, would have to overcome the inertia and sabotage of OAS agents and sympathizers in the officer corps.

A civilian official had serious doubts of what the army might do if negotiations produced no reasonable guarantees for the settlers, or if negotiations failed completely and the government decided to go ahead with its plan to "regain" the Europeans. With its future depending on secret negotiations with the FLN and on the reaction of the OAS, Algeria is living in fear and uncertainty, in which the daily list of killings is considered by many as a mild forecast of what is to come. Uncertainty has caused a slump in private investment. Only government money keeps building going. Few people are buying cars or any other consumer goods. Shopkeepers report a fall in sales of between 40 per cent and 70 per cent in the past year.

Europeans are buying only necessities and European shopkeepers refuse to give hire-purchase terms to Europeans or Muslims. They refuse to put their faith in any guarantee, however satisfactory they may appear on paper.

A furniture salesman said: "My family came here in 1836, but in an independent Algeria

I would be a negligible quantity. Anyone could do my job. I am not an engineer, nor a technician, nor a school teacher. A Muslim would take my place. But I shall not leave until I am forced to. There is still a gleam of hope in the OAS. It could still keep Algeria French."

A European in Bab El Oued was equally convinced that independence could be avoided, because the OAS would prevent an agreement from being carried out. This feeling was shared by a wealthy, informed European. There is a stubborn refusal to face facts, although every day some European families give up and leave for France.

The majority will stay to the end, and although it is hard to judge how many settlers will be ready to risk their lives on the streets, a showdown seems inevitable, and even the most optimistic expect it to be bloody.

Confined to Algeria a new revolt would be no more likely to succeed than the putsch of April last year. But officials in their contingency planning juggle with many unknowns. Algeria is now presented as a tale of three cities—Algiers, Oran and Bone—with large European populations. The rest of the country, say officials with some justification, is ready for independence. But after seven years of war with constant political and emotional repercussions in France, the suppression of the resistance to change by the Europeans of the three towns could still upset the political regime in France itself.

Ottawa Report

Long Wanted

By ARTHUR BLARELY

TO SOME, the most surprising thing about Transport Minister Baker's announcement of the formation of the Canadian Coast Guard Service was that it had been so long in coming. Others, however, were surprised that it had been made at all.

For some decades, MPs and other representatives of Canada's coastal areas have been urging just such a move.

The U.S. Coast Guard has a long and distinguished history. In the United Kingdom, the Coast Guard tradition goes back even further into history. The same is true of France.

In the circumstances, it is scarcely surprising that Canadians living in the Maritimes and British Columbia, in particular, should have reached the firm conclusion long ago that the sooner Canada had just such a service the better it would be for their fishermen and others who went to sea.

The transport department shared the view that a Canadian service of this kind was not only desirable but necessary. But there was a strong feeling at the upper levels that while this was so, the old "coast guard" name and tradition should be put resolutely to one side in favor of a designation that could be described as distinctly Canadian.

This duly materialized in the form of the "Canadian Marine Service." It discharged many or most of the functions of a coast guard of the traditional sort. And as far as the transport department was concerned, that should have ended the matter. But it didn't.

Whenever Parliament was in session, demands for the establishment of a Canadian coast guard service were in no way diminished by the mere fact that such services were, in the main at least, being discharged by a Canadian Marine Service.

To representatives of coastal constituencies, of ridings near enough to the coast to be influenced, this wasn't the same thing at all and never could be, no matter how efficient or how large the Canadian Marine Service might become.

This adherence to the coast guard tradition had little to do with party ties. During the postwar period, appeals for the formation of a Canadian coast guard service came from Liberals, Conservatives and CCF-ers alike.

One maritime MP explained it to me this way: "The term 'Canadian Marine Service' means absolutely nothing to my people. What we want—and the only thing we want in this field—is a Canadian coast guard service. If we can't have that, we want the Marine Service the Canadian coast guard, because of the role it seems to us to be playing. But its style and title we want no part of."

The transport department, however, resisted any such change. The Canadian Marine Service was doing the kind of job that a Canadian coast guard service would be expected to handle. And that was all that really mattered.

But was it? The Canadian Marine Service, lacking a loyal maritime following in Parliament, never achieved its full potential as a coast guard-type service. The expenditures which Parliament was asked to approve for its advancement were never voted with much enthusiasm.

It may be doubted, in fact, if the personnel attached to the Canadian Marine Service felt the sense of direction that stems from loyalties imbedded in tradition. Certainly they could scarcely have remained unaware of the fact that the CMS lacked a popular following in coastal areas that was waiting to attach itself to a coast guard service.

Ex-Transport Minister Lionel Chevrier, who faced the coast guard problem as a member of Liberal ministries, seemed to share this view when he expressed the view that officers and men on CMS ships would, he was sure, be delighted with the announcement of the change.

Africans Hesitate
At Freedom Move

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—This nursery of paradox has produced a new one: Belgium is pushing early independence for an African territory and African countries are hanging back on the question.

The key to the argument over tiny but populous Ruanda-Urundi is the fear of another bloodbath, such as occurred after the Congo won independence from Belgium June 30, 1960.

PLAN OPPOSED

While African countries favor independence, they are balking at Belgium's recommendation that Ruanda-Urundi—administered by Belgium under a UN trusteeship—be allowed to set up shop as separate political entities. That would mean an inevitable delay, diplomats say.

POLICIES DEBATED

Under debate for two weeks in the 104-member trusteeship committee, the matter received increased attention Wednesday following completion of a more spectacular discussion in the UN General Assembly on Portugal's colonial policies.

SEPARATE STATES

Ruanda-Urundi, among the most densely populated areas of Africa, packs 5,000,000 persons into an area the size of Nova Scotia, which has 800,000. Historically, Ruanda and Urundi were separate states under a feudal system but they were administered together by Belgium.

CANADA'S ROLE

Canada came into the picture last year when it was appointed along with Tunisia and Brazil to a UN committee to implement an amnesty resolution passed by the Assembly regarding prisoners taken by the Belgians in restoring order.

Martial Asselin, Canadian delegate on the trusteeship committee, went to Ruanda-Urundi in a mission which was considered an essential prelude to free elections in September leading toward independence.

RELEASED MOST

The three studied 2,000 cases within three weeks and recommended the release from prison of 1,800 persons.

"We received the utmost co-operation from the Belgian authorities," Asselin said Wednesday. "But it was a very unstable situation because of passions among the political parties."

'Arab Colonialists
Enslave Sudanese'

BRAZZAVILLE, Congo Republic (UPI)—Two leaders of the Sudanese opposition said yesterday their countrymen are being enslaved under "Arab colonialism."

Sudanese priest Saturnino Lohuri and former school teacher Joseph Odouho said the 6,000,000 Africans of Sudan are ruled by 2,500,000 Arabs using "colonialist methods."

"The Arabs simply took the place of the British, only the British treated us decently whereas the Arabs treat us like slaves," the refugees said.

Lohuri is the president of the outlawed Sudanese Liberal Party and Odouho is its secretary. Both fled the Sudan about a year ago.

Coroner Tells Waitress
'You're Legally Dead'

LONDON—A 28-year-old waitress was told on the best legal authority that she is dead.

Pauline McGee was informed by coroner A. Gordon Davies that some weeks ago her former boyfriend positively identified a body dragged from the River Thames as hers. An inquest was held and she was pronounced to be dead, he said.

Miss McGee protested, but the coroner continued: "Once a verdict is recorded it can only be altered by the High Court, and until they quash the verdict you must remain legally dead."

BALISUBURY, Southern Rhodesia (UPI)—The education ministry has refused to permit a white man to send his children to a segregated native and Asian school.

U.S. Farm Plan
Creates Storm

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy proposed Wednesday a new United States farm program that would take the government out of much of agriculture unless farmers accepted controls tight enough to halt production of costly surpluses.

The program, outlined in a special message to Congress, ran into immediate and violent opposition in some quarters. Even those who said they liked it predicted it would face stiff opposition in Congress. Generally, Democrats spoke favorably of it and Republicans unfavorably.

'NOT WANTED'

Charles Shuman, president of the influential American Farm Bureau Federation, said the Kennedy proposals would attempt to coerce farmers into accepting controls they did not want.

The plan featured much tougher restrictions on production of wheat, feed grains and milk—the three big surplus products of the moment.

Producers would have to accept these new controls at reductions or loss of important government price supports for wheat and feed grains and accept much lower supports for milk and dairy products.

The new commodity controls would be designed to cut $5,000,000,000 off costs of farm aid programs during the next four years.

Clare Loring's Paintings

The Sea Is Her Challenge

By INA D. D. UHTHOFF

My visit to Clare Loring's show of paintings at The Point here was not my first contact with her work.

I think it was three years ago when I received an invitation to attend a private view at her studio on Broughton Street.

Her paintings were large and contained masses of clotted paint. My impression was she was feeling for something she had not captured, but like all experiments in paint they would probably lead to something well worth while.

When I received an invitation to the private view of her Hawaiian paintings I was eager to see what had developed in the intervening years. And I certainly was not disappointed. They are immensely handsome.

As she now lives in Hawaii, the sea has become a real challenge and she spends much time studying along the shores of Oahu, sometimes sitting on the rocks before dawn, then hurrying back to her little studio in Manoa Valley.

Civil Defence Starts Year

Yearly budget will be set up and policy discussed at a meeting of Victoria civil defence control board at 2 p.m. Monday.

Absent from this first meeting of the board will be Saanich and Oak Bay which have formed separate civil defence areas.

Victoria, Esquimalt and adjacent unorganized areas will be represented.

to transpose her feeling to canvas.

Clare Loring is Canadian by birth. She has her master's degree in fine arts from the University of California, and has studied in some of the leading art schools in Canada, the United States and South Africa.

She was lecturer at Oakland Art Museum prior to 1959 when she decided to make Hawaii her home.

Her paintings are not the usual abstractions of objects or of the surface appearance of the sea—they are the artist's reactions to Hawaiian waters in their changing moods.

"Down Through the Depths" is a bold concept in deep tones of blue, while "Sea Forms" swings over to the warm range of yellows and orange.

"Dawn" is in a different mood, clear and cool with a swaying movement of the waves. "Sea Cavern" makes use of thickly encrusted paint to delineate the pattern of the composition.

"Reflection," a large oil in a lovely harmony of blue and orange is the first thing catching the attention, and then "Sunset," all warm and glowing with inner color rhythms, attracts us to a different room.

B.C. Members Apply Pressure

OTTAWA (CP)—Back-bench pressure is building up among British Columbia MPs to find a solution to the Columbia River dispute, informants said Wednesday.

They also said Finance Minister Fleming may reply in a day or two to Premier Bennett who this week requested a further set of possible dates for another meeting on the question.

B.C. government supporters met Justice Minister Fulton and External Affairs Minister Green Monday in what was described as a routine meeting.

It was followed Tuesday night by another session—this time including Mr. Fleming and Resources Minister Dinsdale—who are also members of the cabinet committee on the Columbia.

It was understood unanimously was expressed about the need for action but there was less accord on just what sort of action to take.

The need for both governments to save political face emerges as a main obstacle, it is suggested, since both stands have been so firmly outlined and maintained.

But with a general election expected, B.C. Commons members are anxious to make some move.

Mr. Fleming and Mr. Bennett, who conferred twice in 1961, failed to get together this month for a third meeting. Now Mr. Bennett has suggested a Victoria meeting any time up to the end of March or—given a week's notice—one in Ottawa after Feb. 15.

Power Battle 'Symptoms'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The protracted wrangle between the federal and B.C. governments over Columbia power is only a symptom of a general breakdown in federal-provincial relations and reflects a serious loss of national unity and purpose, New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas told the Vancouver Canadian Club yesterday.

He warned in an address that in 1960 a third of the country's labor force earned so little they did not have to pay income tax and "people making that little can't even afford to eat properly."

Earlier Mr. Douglas got an enthusiastic reception from between 1,700 and 1,800 students at the University of British Columbia. He told them he wouldn't be surprised if the Diefenbaker government has not already made a secret deal with the United States to accept nuclear arms for Canada.

It was inconceivable millions of dollars would be spent on developing missile sites in Canada if the weapons were not to be equipped with nuclear warheads.

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Vancouver Island is fortunate in the possession of so many different varieties of fine shade trees, but occasionally these pose something of a problem. I've had quite a rash of letters coming across my desk these past few months from home gardeners wondering what on earth they can plant this spring to provide a little color in the shady parts of the garden.

I've been having myself a ball trying to answer these correspondents, for hardly any of them bother to tell me just what kind of shade they have. There is a difference, you know, ranging all the way from those really gloomy spots under low-hanging shrubs to places which get early morning or late afternoon sun and are shaded only during the hottest part of the day. I imagine the day will come when a photographer's light meter will be an essential item in every gardener's kit.

You're out of luck if your problem spot is dark and gloomy and overhung with low-growing trees and shrubs. There isn't much of anything you can get to grow under such conditions except mosses, for all flowering plants need a fair amount of light. Ferns will do fairly well, but even that old stand-by lily of the valley doesn't enjoy really dense shade. While the plants will grow in such a situation, they won't bloom with any enthusiasm unless a modicum of light reaches them.

Many of our finest garden flowers are descended from wild woodland plants. These great-granddaddies grew in park-like forest glades with the forest floor dappled with little spots of sunshine filtering through the leaves. This condition is just about ideal for a whole host of plants such as the members of the primula family, day lilies, foxgloves, columbines, hosta, bleeding heart and many others.

Quite often such a pleasant dappled shade can be created out of a gloomy situation by trimming off some of the lower branches of the offending trees and doing a little judicious thinning of the upper limbs.

Shade which is caused by trees is usually complicated by soil which is dry and impoverished from the completion of the tree roots. The trick here is to dig in plenty of organic matter, using rotted leaves, compost, manure or peat moss—anything which will absorb and retain a reserve of moisture. In nature, the tree's fallen leaves are allowed to remain and enrich the soil, but when we tidy things up with the rake every fall, a substitute form of humus must be found.

You'd better be a little heavy-handed with the fertilizer too, keeping in mind the tree roots will snitch quite a big share of whatever you put down. When you water in the summer, soak the ground thoroughly, then probe to make sure the moisture has penetrated deeply. For tree-shaded spots don't get much benefit from light showers of rain and the trees themselves pull an enormous quantity of water from the soil.

There is another kind of shady bed which has almost unlimited possibilities. These are the situations on the north side of a fence or house wall, with nothing at all overhanging and with a wide expanse of open sky above and to the north. A surprising amount of light is reflected from the sky in such an open spot and you can grow almost anything except the most confirmed sun-worshippers. All the woodland plants mentioned before do well under these light but sunless conditions, together with pansies, violas, cleomes, snaps and such unlikely annuals as the South African Nemesis and flowering tobacco.

Four Months Underground

NEW YORK.

My cher Pierre:

Please forgive me for not writing sooner but I have been in my fallout shelter for the last four months and haven't been able to post any letters. You see, what happened was that when President Kennedy told us we all better go into our fallout shelters because of Berlin, we went. But the trouble was nobody told us when to come out.

I kept waiting for an all-clear signal or maybe a visit from an air raid warden, but absolutely no one came, so Yvonne and the children and I decided to stick it out. But after four months we drank up all the Pernod and I decided I'd better come up and have a look around.

You can imagine my surprise when I discovered New York wasn't even damaged, and there was plenty of water and food for everybody. Then I started to make some discreet inquiries. I discovered that although the Berlin crisis was by no means over, the government thought it was better if everybody went back to work instead of guarding their shelters. But nobody thought to tell me. I suppose it's because I'm a Frenchman and the Americans have to think of their own first.

The experience in the fallout shelter wasn't too bad. Yvonne fixed it up very nice with Louise XV furniture. I designed the wine cellar, and we stocked up on cassoulet, bouillabaisse, crepes, and fromage. It cost a pretty franc, I can tell you. As a matter of fact if I had to do it all over I would have listened to my friend.

He told me, "Look Francois, your shelter costs you $4,800. It costs another $2,000 to furnish it, and $3,000 for air conditioning, plumbing, electricity, and television. Why don't you just spend $5 for a shotgun and then if anything happens you can impose on your neighbors and go into theirs? It will save you so much money and bother."

But Yvonne wouldn't hear of it. She's seen our neighbor's fallout shelter and she thinks it's been furnished atrociously. She can't understand what people see in modern.

The children were wonderful during the four months. We went down with five and we have two left. Francois, Jr. throttled little Jacques on the third day over who had a right to sleep in the upper bunk. I became very angry with Francois, Jr. about this but Francois has been around American kids too long and all he would say was, "You never take my side and you're not interested in my problems." I pointed out that throttling his brother over an upper bunk in a fallout shelter wasn't exactly a nice thing to do and he replied, "Teen-agers have some rights, too."

After two weeks little Philippe and Charles became bored and started to play a game of who could hold their breath the longest. They became so intent on winning that they both expired before I could stop them.

So now there is only Francois, Jr., little Jeanette, Yvonne, and myself. We never believed in large families, anyway.

Francois, Jr. became very mad at me when he came out of the shelter and realized we had wasted so much time. According to him he missed three gang rumbles and one dance at the YMCA.

I have read in the papers you are having a lot of trouble in France now, and I am sorry to hear this, but whatever you do, don't build a fallout shelter. It isn't the closeness of quarters or even being underground for such a long time that will get you. It's drinking the wine at room temperature.

Your cher ami,

FRANCOIS.

Buchholz Can't Dance

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—One of the few things versatile Horst Buchholz cannot do is dance—but he will play Nijinsky, for all that, in the movie biography of the famed Russian ballet dancer. Horst's stand-in and the one who will do the dancing will probably be Nureyev, a runaway Russian.

Frank Sinatra and Juliet Prowse have decided June 28 will be lucky for them, with a fancy wedding in Las Vegas, but I won't be too surprised if they time by the fore-clock and elope before then.

Sophie Loren, with her career going so well, says she will take her chances in Italian courts on that charge of bigamy—and "the sooner the better."

Elizabeth Taylor is setting a new eye-make up fashion in Rome—a bright red triangle centred with glittery blue-green. Hope this does not catch on.

George Gobel is signing with Stanley Kramer for "Mad, Mad, Mad World." George's first movie since that horrendous effort with Diana Dors six years ago. Piper Laurie and husband Joseph S. Morgenthau will make their home in the East. Piper will continue with her career. "But I still won't sign any long-term contract," she says. She's great in "The Hustler."

Paul Scofield, an enormous hit on Broadway in "A Man for All Seasons," is director Jose Quintero's choice for the role of a mute in "The Heart is a Lonely Hunter," with Zero Mostel as another deaf mute, and Ben Gazzara as the rebellious youth.

When Simone Signoret was told to slap Sir Laurence Olivier across his lips for a scene in "Term of Trial," she said "I can't do it; I've never slapped a man in my life." Which makes the star sort of unique.

Goods news for those with TV color sets: Doris Day will star in two tinted television spectacles for the 1962-63 season.

Black Watch Starts Centennial Festivities

MONTREAL (CP)—The tradition-steeped Royal Highland Regiment of Canada, also known as the Black Watch, started year-long centenary celebrations yesterday.

With the regiment's 1st Battalion serving in West Germany and the 2nd Battalion at Camp Gagetown, N.B., the 3rd Battalion, which supervises Montreal depot, will be the centre of attraction. All units observed the regiment's birthday yesterday

The press agent who sent me an item that Susanah York and Montgomery Clift were getting to be a twosome obviously didn't know that Miss York is very happily married. The blonde English girl and Monty have just about finished their "Freud" movie in Munich.

Audrey Hepburn would play Peter Pan, with Hayley Mills as Wendy and Peter Sellers as Captain Hook in the new movie version of the Barrie classic now in discussion stage in England. . . . Mark Sandrich Jr. has been in New York discussing the production of his musical "Ben Franklin in Paris." Mark wrote the score, Sidney Michaels the lyrics, and both collaborated on the book.

Print Import Detrimental To Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — David MacLellan, general manager of the Canadian Graphic Arts Industries Association, said Wednesday Canada's heavy volume of printing imports has a severe effect on the economy as well as the country's cultural identity.

"The size of our unrequited printed imports is serious because they are business builders," he said.

LIKE A WOMAN

"Like a woman, printing leads to all sorts of things, newly-awakened desires, increased demands, new expenditures."

He said Canada is the world's largest importer of printed matter and absorbs at least 75 per cent of all printing exports by the United States.

SERIOUS OBSTACLE

In the cultural field, he said, the U.S. Copyright Act has been "a serious obstacle" because it prevents Canada from shipping more than 1,500 copies of any book to the U.S.

This had forced many talented Canadian authors to have their books printed outside Canada. Meanwhile millions of copies of U.S. books entered Canada freely.

Mr. MacLellan also said many Canadian companies and "most of our religious denominations" habitually import printed matter that should be produced in Canada.

Varsity Honors Wilson

Honored at dinner given by Victoria University administration last night was Mayor E. B. Wilson. He is flanked by principal Dr. Harry Hickman and Judge J. E. Clearthine, chairman of Victoria University Council. Mayor Wilson, who headed successful $2,500,000 fund drive, later became first chairman of permanent university development board. He resigned after becoming Mayor, but remains board member. — (W. A. Boucher photo)

Scurrah Honored

Guest of honor at the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce meeting last night, ex-Mayor Percy Scurrah admires a plaque presented to him on behalf of members by Al Buchan, president. The mayor, a senator of the chamber, was presented with a Jaycee shirt and other "unofficial awards." He praised the work of the 80 members attending the dinner. — (Colonist photo.)

'Amazing Bunch' Thanked

Members of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce were described as "an amazing bunch of fellows" by thankful former mayor Percy Scurrah at a special dinner last night.

Mr. Scurrah, a senator of the junior chamber, was honored for outstanding community service during his term of office as mayor.

START OR FINISH

Main speaker at the dinner meeting was R. J. Bower, editor of The Daily Colonist, whose subject was "Commonwealth: Beginning or End?" He discussed formation and possible future of the Commonwealth.

STAND BEHIND

Following presentation ceremonies of a Jaycee shirt and an engraved plaque, Mr. Scurrah urged all members to stand behind and help publicize the centenary to draw tourists to Victoria from Seattle.

"The whole economic life of the city is affected by tourists... if it wasn't for the tourist business in Victoria we would have a few bad months," he said.

PEE EMPLOYEE

He asked the membership if a committee could be formed to canvas Greater Victoria stores to contribute $1.50 per employee to help finance the Victoria and Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau booth at the Century 21 World Fair. Operation of the booth is expected to cost more than $50,000, he said.

"We are all going to have to work together to make the project successful," he said.

Clarification Attempt Successful

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice F. K. Collins of the Supreme Court Tuesday ordered a federal arbitration award — which reduces certain longshore gangs by one man — sent back to the federal board for clarification.

Five deepsea locals of the Longshoremen's union sought the order, claiming one interpretation could affect 102 men in Vancouver, New Westminster, Victoria, Chemainus and Port Alberni locals.

The Shipping Federation of B.C. agreed the award should be clarified.

Judge Probes Arrest Of Rabbi in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court justice was named Wednesday to investigate the conduct and performance of duty of Metropolitan Toronto police in the arrest of a New York rabbi last Friday.

Attorney-General Kelso Roberts appointed Mr. Justice Dalton Wells to inquire into and report upon the "interrogation and detention" of Dr. Norbert Weiner.

"Any incident which would tend to seriously impair this relationship requires close scrutiny and an inquiry is desirable," said Mr. Roberts.

The rabbi complained he was placed forcibly into a police cruiser and taken to headquarters when he was unable to identify himself when stopped on a suburban street.

CANNOT HIDE He said his orthodox beliefs prevent him from carrying a wallet between sundown Friday and sundown Saturday, or to use the telephone or ride in a vehicle.

He was charged with assaulting a policeman.

Furious Letter Killed Faro Bank

Serpent Reared Ugly Head

"A serpent whose fangs are charged with deadly poison has dared to raise its hideous head in this community, and already its loathsome coils are encircling some of our best men," said the furious letter dropped into The Daily British Colonist's mailbox on Feb. 1, 1862.

It appeared that a faro bank ("deal by experienced sports, and where green ones are nightly relieved of their money") had been running "within a few seconds' walk of the very building from which the Colonist is issued."

The significant thing was that there were apparently few if any winners. The letter-writer said the game had taken solid Victoria businessmen for about $6,000 in a month.

We'll never know who it was that blew the gaff on the game, because he signed himself only "Caribootie." This was wise of him. There were enough dark alleys in old Victoria, and a racket worth $1,500 a week in those days would be worth protecting.

Anyway, once the letter was published, the uproar soon closed down the faro game. Caribootie wrote a few follow-up reports, noting in one that the happiest people in town were the regular card-sharps.

"well up on poker, euchre, old sledge, freeze-out, cut-throat and other elegant and refined games."

They had their old pigeons back.

From overseas, there was word that Sir William Cubitt had died. His claim to fame was that he invented the tread-mill.

A largely comic assault once occupied the local court.

Evidence was that E. Mallandaine had been collecting might say that you said it in fun."

After some further exchange, Mr. Mallandaine hit Mr. Waddington on the chest, and after what must have been quite a battle (there was damage to "furniture, decanters, etc.") he was thrown out, with a black eye.

The court nixed him $5 for the assault and $5 for the furniture, decanters, etc.

In Portland about this time, the world's champion jiggler, Mike Mitchell, was frozen solid when he lay down head, and Selcock was fined 50 shillings.

They were arrested but let go later.

Somebody smuggled liquor into the Victoria jail, and "soon after, six or eight of the convicts were discovered in a beastly state of intoxication."

The gunboat Forward was launched inauspiciously at the Scorgie and Bolton shipyard.

"At the end of the ways her stern settled in the mud, and she will have to lay there until next tide." She came off all right.

Word came to Victoria that the army captain who commanded American forces in the famous 1859 Pig War on San Juan Island had resigned his federal commission and joined the Confederate army, rising almost immediately to brigadier general.

He was to write his name on American history the next July by leading a charge up Cemetery Hill at Gettysburg. The name was George Edward Pickett.

Women's Leaders To Meet Monday

OTTAWA (CP)—The executive of the 700,000-member National Council of Women will hold a two-day meeting here next Monday and Tuesday and present its annual brief to the federal cabinet.

money for the local Rifle Corps, of which both he and E. C. Waddington were members.

Last week Mr. Mallandaine heard that Waddington had said that the Rifle Corps was a humbug and that he (M.) was collecting money under false pretences.

Mr. Mallandaine and a friend stormed over to Mr. Waddington's house. "What do you want—an apology or a retraction?" asked Mr. Waddington.

"Not exactly that," said Mr. Mallandaine—sulkily. "But you on the sidewalk to sleep off a binge. "Poor fellow," said the Colonist. "It was his last nap."

A 2 a.m. tangle on Government Street near Yates saw Charles Coutts bury a knife in Vincent Selcock's arm "to the bone" (he'd aimed for the heart) and the two spent the night in stir.

Next morning, to almost everyone's surprise, it turned out that Coutts was a peaceful chap whom Selcock had attacked, and had stabbed Selcock only after warning him to keep off. So Coutts was

The ship Coquimbó was wrecked just across the strait, when a gale struck her off Dungeness.

John D Needle Cut

TORONTO (UPI)—The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation has cut a monologue by comedian Jean Templeton because of satirical references to Prime Minister Diefenbaker.
Miss Templeton said she was asked to delete the references, protested, and finally agreed to do a completely fresh monologue.
"I am disappointed because I have always been proud of the CBC's freedom from interference," she said.
The monologue was taped last October for a CBC Parade show which has not yet been aired.
Miss Templeton has used the Diefenbaker references in a nightly Toronto night club performance with her husband, Dave Broadfoot, also a comedian.
In the original monologue, Miss Templeton identifies Diefenbaker as the prime minister of Canada and then adds, "for the time being."
In another instance, she quotes him as saying no one will suffer as a result of unemployment, and comments, "I am sure he will."
On the third occasion, she refers to Diefenbaker as being a compulsive worrier.
In Ottawa yesterday Revenue Minister Nowlan denied political interference by the government was involved in the program being cut.

Despite all the new luxuries and conveniences built into the new cars on display this week at the Victoria Auto Show, in Memorial Arena, dealers do not supply singers such as pretty Joyce Hahn of the Cross Canada Hit Parade. She, along with Jerry Murad and the Harmonicats, plus the Three Leggers dance team put on a stage show three times daily. (Colonist photo.)

Gold-Rush Voices Downtown
Nostalgic sounds of the days of the gold rush and swinging door are being broadcast from Eaton's department store as part of its contribution to Victoria's centennial celebrations.
The sounds include the voice of Robert W. Service reading some of his poems, including the famous "Shooting of Dan McGrew."
There are also tenor John McCormack's original recording of "When the Corn Is Waving, Nellie" and a honky-tonk piano playing "Father's Mustache Cup" and the classic "Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage."
Adding to the mood is a window display of antique cylinder recordings, loaned by Bill Ward of Victoria.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Fleesch

I don't know whether the human passion for collecting goes back all the way to Adam and Eve, but it certainly can't have started much later than that. People, it seems, have always been collecting inanimate objects and making themselves thoroughly ridiculous in the process.

"The Strange Life of Objects" by Maurice Rheims (Atheneum) is a fat book filled to overflowing with odd, rare and curious facts about the mania for collecting old, rare and curious things. For instance, in the 16th century a French lawyer was promoted to councillor of state. In a memorable feat of snobbery, he bought a silver service for 4,000 livres and "rolled it up and down all through the night until it looked battered and nobody thought it was new."

Almost Nothing

Dr. Lacaze, a Paris physician who lived 100 years ago, had a knack for buying masterpieces at bargain prices. He bought, for practically nothing, dozens of Watteaus, Fragonards, Tintoretos, Velasques and Rubens. Then he'd pile them up in his little apartment which contained no furniture except for a bed, two chairs and a divan.

Calquiste Gulbenkian, who died a few years ago as one of the richest men in the world, kept his fabulous collection of art treasures in his Paris apartment. He himself lived in a hotel in Portugal and never went near Paris. The only people who ever saw his collection were two footmen and a night watchman.

Possibly the all-time record in collecting was set by the 17th century Frenchman Abbe de Morailles. In 1666 he was the possessor of 123,400 engravings by more than 6,000 artists, bound into 600 large and 120 small folios. He felt this was too much and donated it all to the king. Then he started a fresh collection.

Another record of a sort was set by a French collector who once consulted a psychiatrist. The psychiatrist gave him a clean bill of mental health and then fell to chatting with him about collecting. "I specialize," the man said, "Ever since childhood I've been collecting croissants from all the pastry shops and bakers in the world. I house my collection in a place I've built for the purpose, where I can regulate the temperature. When I'm dead, I'm going to leave my croissants to the Louvre."

Crippled Old Oak Dies

Ancient Garry oak was felled in Stadacona Park yesterday after it suffered damage in recent high winds. Parks department employees shown sawing up the 5½-foot-diameter trunk are both by a coincidence named Ian Smith. Oak was 450 years old.—(Colonist photo.)

Seen 'Devotion'

Best Possible Faculty Attracted to Varsity

Victoria University is vying with the greatest universities in North America to bring the best possible instructors to its faculty.

Dr. Izzed Din Pal, a Pakistani here to introduce courses in international trade and advanced economics, said yesterday the university had added faculty at prices "that were competitive with anywhere in the North American continent."

BOUT OF DEVOTION

Spence has arrived here in September, Dr. Pal said, he has been impressed by the manner in which Victoria University officials are working to make the university grow. "They have a sort of devotion," he said.

COULD CHANGE

He said a university with a student body of 5,000 could change the whole structure of Victoria.

Dr. Pal said he would like to see a second independent university in B.C. and added Victoria, as B.C.'s capital, would be the ideal place for its location.

Mothers on March For Hour Tonight

At least 2,400 marching mothers of the local branch of the Polio-myelitis and Rehabilitation Foundation of B.C. will embark on their annual one-hour torchlight campaign at 6:30 p.m. today. The mothers hope to visit every house in Greater Victoria during the one-hour appeal. Last year $38,000 was collected in this area.

Builders May Miss Coming Float Boom

Building contractors in the Greater Victoria area may be missing out on additional work brought on by the centennial year.

A number of inquiries have been made to the Greater Victoria Centennial Association by local businessmen on whether there is a list of contractors available to build floats for the Victoria Day parade.

More floats are expected this year than ever before, an association spokesman said. Floats will be decorated on the centennial of progress theme.

Interested contractors may give their names to the association at EV 23912 and the information will be passed on, the spokesman said.

Price Above Value

High Cost of Land Stalls Off-Street Parking Plans

Hopes that concrete action could be taken yesterday toward building two off-street parking garages downtown apparently foundered on finance.

The city parking commission had hoped to have matters far enough along to be discussed in council, but the mayor went word that things had not reached the proper stage, city clerk Frank Hunter told aldermen who arrived at city hall to attend a special 4 p.m. council meeting.

MAKING PROGRESS

"We are making excellent progress," Mayor Wilson reported after the meeting ended, but the Colonist learned one of the main reasons the special council meeting was cancelled was because agreement could not be reached over the cost of land.

Owners of land chosen as the site for one of the two garages are reported asking a price well above the assessed value of the property.

SITE OCCUPIED

And the second site favored by the commission is occupied by a firm which doesn't want to move out and which would have to incur unusually high moving costs.

The special council meeting convened by Mayor Wilson was cancelled shortly after 4 p.m. Ald. Austin Curtis, Ald. Millard Mooney and Ald. A. W. Toome had attended.

SOMETHING CONCRETE

"I hope before too long we will have something concrete," Mayor Wilson said. "We had a good discussion and got a lot of information but we reached no conclusions."

The off-street parking plan—estimated at $1,115,000 to build parking space for 800 cars—was approved last August by property owners in the downtown area.

Mayor Wilson has pressed for action to implement the bylaw since taking office in January.

Bennett Awaits Ferry Ruling

Premier Bennett still is awaiting word from Ottawa about the prospects of a 40 per cent federal shipbuilding subsidy for the new government ferries.

The premier has sent another telegram to Ottawa on the subject and until a reply is received no decision can be made as to which engines should be used in the two ships to be built this year by Victoria Machinery Depot.

The English firm of Ruston and Hornsby submitted the low bid for the engines but a telegram from the federal Maritime Commission said the federal subsidy could not be guaranteed unless the low Canadian tenderer was given the job.

In Ottawa Tuesday Transport Minister Leon Balcer said the subsidy would be determined on the amount of Canadian content in the ferries.

Centennial Fort

First decoration of store premises using the centennial theme is this model fort built around the Royal Oak Drug Store in Saanich. Work was completed this week and the fort will remain for the city's centennial year. A city businessman this week announced plans to build a similar false front to his Fort Street store.—(Colonist photo.)

During January

Skating and Sun Marked Weather

All in all, January was a pretty good month for weather. Victoria had more sun than average, less rain—and a few good days' skating.

January brought 2.87 inches of rain, which is well below the 5.82 inches of January, 1961, and under the normal 3.89-inch fall.

The sun shone for 91.3 hours, and although that is less than the 103.4 hours of 4 years ago, it's well above the average of 70 hours.

Snowfall for the month totalled 6 inches. Last year there was none at all in January, but the normal for the month is five inches.

Warmest day of the month was Jan. 30, when the mercury climbed to 55 degrees. On Jan. 14, 1961, it hit the same peak.

and the month averaged out a little better with a mean warm temperature of 47.7 degrees compared with 43 degrees this year.

Coldest day was Jan. 19, with 20 degrees, while the low last year was Jan. 28 with 32 degrees. Mean low temperature for the month just ended was 36 degrees.

City's Share Near $20,000 In Pair of Area Budgets

Victoria's share of two inter-municipal budgets sent to city hall yesterday would be almost $20,000.

The Capital Region Planning Board submitted a $32,262

budget, of which the city share would be $10,981.

And the juvenile detention home submitted a $13,342 budget with the city's share estimated at $6,406.

B.C. Strawberry Surplus Could Shatter Market

PTA Groups Get Action Briefing

Local Parent-Teacher Associations were told last night how to go about the task of forming social action committees on child welfare.

The regional meeting of southern Vancouver Island PTA councils, held in the Ingham Hotel, was attended by 114 delegates representing 31 local associations.

ALL ARMED

They came from the Cowichan district, Sooke and the Saanich peninsula as well as all parts of Greater Victoria. Mrs. Hilda Kristiansen, Vancouver, program chairman for the B.C. Parent-Teacher

Federation said every PTA in the province has been asked to form its own social action group to make a study of the single most pressing local problem in child welfare.

BEST PROJECTS

Recommendations of the local groups will be forwarded to similar committees set up at the levels of each PTA council, such as the one for Greater Victoria. The best projects will go on to the provincial level for further action.

"We are always being told that it is up to the citizens to see to it that they are getting full value for their tax dollar," said Mrs. Kristiansen.

BIGGER SHARE

"It follows, therefore, that if we want a bigger share of the budget spent on education and preventive services in the field of social welfare, we have got to learn modern techniques of putting our views across," she said.

A giant holdover of last year's crop of B.C.-grown strawberries was termed alarming by a spokesman for the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association last night.

Basic cause of the surplus was a sudden upsurge in strawberry growing in Mexico. Herbert Bickford, manager of the association, said the surplus might have profound effects on marketing of this year's crop.

"It's difficult to tell what the exact effect will be. We haven't been to see the buyers yet," said Mr. Bickford.

The National Farmers Union in its annual presentation to the federal cabinet yesterday urged either federal assistance to Canadian growers or a year-round duty on imports.

Mexico's 1961 strawberry average was about seven times that of 1952 and the resulting pressure on U.S. crops was felt in Canada and the brief, B.C. packers were holding 1,000,000 pounds of the 1961 crop although B.C. itself didn't grow enough for its own needs. Mexican berries were available in Vancouver at 15 to 16 cents a pound while B.C. packers were paying growers that price.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I'm engaged to a young man who is in the navy. We set our wedding date for last November.

A few weeks before the wedding he wrote me to tell me his commanding officer wouldn't let him get married. He didn't give any reason—just said he couldn't get permission.

It's been three months now and Steve insists he can do nothing but wait until this officer is transferred. I'm embarrassed because my relatives keep asking questions and I don't know what to say.

I've already bought my wedding dress, bed linens and dishes. Several friends have given showers for me. Who can I write to in the Navy. I'd like to go as high as possible.

—S.W.

Dear S. W.—Don't go any higher than your boy friend. It sounds like the old Navy game to me.

Steve is giving you the stall and you ought to let him know that you are on to him. Apparently he's not ready for marriage yet so don't apply any pressure. An unwilling groom makes a poor husband.

Dear Ann Landers—Our lovely, ambitious daughter who is now 17 and an A student, has been having one or two attacks of epilepsy a year since she was 12. The neurologist was not sure it was epilepsy until last spring. He gave her some pills which he said will probably control her seizures. She has not had an attack for

Orange Marmalade In a Ring Loaf

Home-made bread is a treat you, your family and neighbors can enjoy every day, and here's a special orange marmalade ring loaf that's different, delicious, a delight to serve.

Besides sweet orange marmalade, the loaf is baked with nuts and topped, if you choose, with a thin sugar icing. For a spread, put cream cheese in the hole in the centre. With a bread-like this, of course, the coffee should be your very best—rich, freshly brewed and still steaming hot when it's poured.

ORANGE MARMALADE RING LOAF

Two cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup coarsely chopped nuts, 1 egg, slightly beaten, 1 cup orange marmalade, 1/2 cup evaporated milk, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1 tablespoon melted butter.

Mix and sift flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Stir in nuts. Combine remaining ingredients. Add to flour-nut mixture. Stir only until blended. Turn into greased 5-cup ring mold. Bake in moderate oven, 350°, 45 minutes. Remove from mold. Cool several hours before serving. If desired, frost with thin confectioners' sugar icing and fill centre with cream cheese.

Mario Thomas believes that the secret to energy is having a big breakfast.

'Forced' Breakfast Habit Gives Energy

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD—"You have to learn the little goodies of life for yourself," Mario Thomas, Danny Thomas' vivacious daughter, declared. "No matter how many times you have been told a thing, it's not the same until you experience it."

"My mother has tried to make me eat a good breakfast for years, but I preferred to spend the time sleeping, and I used to rush off to work without even a cup of coffee."

"Then last summer I did a play and I found that I couldn't get through both the matinee and evening performance without being exhausted. Then I remembered what had been told to me about breakfast, and as soon as I had regular meals, I had plenty of energy."

"You have to form a habit of eating in the morning," Mario went on. "At first you won't be hungry at all. Food may even seem repulsive. But if you force yourself to eat, you'll find before long that you are really looking forward to breaking your all night fast."

Mario plays the sister in "The Joey Bishop Show."

"I didn't want to be in it at first," she confessed, "because my father is the producer, but Joey told me how foolish I was to keep from doing something that appealed to me because of fearing what people would say. And he is right. You can't go through life being afraid of opinions."

I told Mario I thought her short hair was so becoming. "I was tired of it long," she explained. "And I didn't know how I should have it cut. So I did what I always do when I'm in doubt. I look through fashion magazines."

"I saw a model wearing her hair like this and I felt that it would be becoming to me. I also think that when you are developing a fashion sense, you can learn a great deal by looking at the models in magazines."

Jubilee WA Raises $4,849 in Year

"I don't think a president ever had a better set of officers," Mrs. D. C. F. MacArthur told members of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Royal Jubilee Hospital at the annual meeting held Wednesday afternoon in the Nurses residence.

Mrs. MacArthur, retiring after a two-year term as president, also reminded members of the aims and objectives of the Auxiliary and gave a brief outline of the more important things.

Mrs. H. G. Sothorn was installed as the new president. Other officers are Mrs. G. Coffey, first vice-president; Mrs. L. G. Hamilton, second vice-president; Mrs. A. Dees, secretary; Mrs. C. C. Rich, treasurer; and Mrs. E. J. Harcourt, corresponding secretary. The sum of $4,849.94 was raised during the year and $3,086.14 was disbursed.

Cash on hand totalled $13,730.97 and includes $8,541 set aside for furnishings for the new wing.

Money was raised at a tag day, $335; TV rentals, $1,448; bridge and tea, $336; coffee party and draw, $774; sale of baby photos, $1,503 and a Christmas bar for nurses.

Purchases included a circulator bed, $612; incubator, $625; footstool, $8.75; two baby scales, $338; nine tables, $219; suction pump, $245 and aluminium wagon, $33.17.

Gifts—were also given to nurses, new babies in hospital, and Christmas cheer was also provided.

The treasurer's report was presented by Mrs. F. D. Lee in the absence of Mrs. Rich.

Corresponding secretary, Mrs. George Darimont and recording secretary, Mrs. Dees, also gave extensive reports.

Conveners reports were presented by Mrs. F. E. Loveday, Mrs. P. E. Corby, Mrs. W. G. Thorpe, Mrs. V. Price, Mrs. R. Hopkins, Mrs. J. C. B. Keane, Mrs. H. G. Pinhorn, Mrs. C. C. Annett, Mrs. E. Hutchinson, Mrs. G. Coffey and Mrs. G. Metcalf.

Dr. J. L. Murray-Anderson, superintendent of the hospital, was a guest at the meeting and spoke briefly. He told the members it was an inspiration to hear reports that covered such a wide diversity of activities. He stressed the importance of the service to the hospital, in particular to the Cancer Clinic and maternity wards, the supplies and generous grants for equipment.

Miss M. E. Thompson, director of nurses, also spoke briefly expressing appreciation for the help provided by the auxiliary.

Mr. George Masters, hospital administrator, was represented by his 93 year old father, Mr. T. P. Masters who told members how impressed he had been by the great amount of work reported.

After the meeting tea was served with Mrs. Masters and Miss Thompson presiding at the table centred with a gay arrangement of daffodils and chrysanthemums and lighted yellow tapers.

Even Mao Suffers Malady

By RON POULTON
Telegram News Service

Medical authorities have clarified some things about it ("the wolf of diseases"); but one huge difference exists between their clinical descriptions and the blunt opinions of sufferers.

The difference is this: what the afflicted have said has often been unprintable. The disease tries the patience as severely as the body.

To put it mildly, it hurts like hellfire.

Not Comforting

One expert has said: "Extreme cantankerousness has been considered a definite symptom of the disease." Hardly comforting, especially when you consider that Mao Tse-tung has it.

It's also been described as "a perverse, ungrateful, malevolent malady that delights upon the slightest pretext in assailing vulnerable humanity... a steady rancorous, irascible, mordacious disorder."

And yet a lot of people still think it's funny.

Closely Linked

Gout is a form of arthritis. It is the most dangerous form in the opinion of at least one medic-scientist who is studying it closely.

Dr. H. A. Smythe believes gout can be linked closely with blood vessel diseases which can be fatal through the heart and kidneys.

He and Dr. M. A. Ogryzlo are conducting an intense study of the link between gout and vascular diseases. Dr. Smythe says: "New insights make it highly promising that new treatments will evolve."

When doctors attempt to describe the pain of gout they invariably go back to an 18th century clergyman who said it made him feel as though he was walking on his eyeballs.

Became But

Yet, gout became the butt of humor when cartoonists began to delight 18th century Englishmen with drawings of fat, bewigged gentlemen gingerly hoisting bandaged feet in and out of sedan chairs. Those cartoons have dogged the victim ever since.

Few diseases have been subjected to more misconceptions, even today. Gout is thought to be uncommon when in fact, it is common. Many people think

Fourth of a Series

There is no defence against it. There are good defenses.

It is believed wine, women and song cause it. Loose living has little to do with it, except that liquor can trigger an attack in a gouty type.

Even ruddies can get gout. And since it's somewhat difficult to be a secret drinker in an open cage, this only proves, if anything, that the world is full of odd birds.

Word for It

Many people think it always hits the big toe when, really, it can wander from joint to joint and extremity to extremity like a sailor on a foot.

Gout turns the skin a fiery purple-red. It is also colorful in other ways. History is riddled with references to it. The Greeks even had a word for it (podagra).

Nowadays drugs will keep gout at bay to the point where a controlled diet is no longer necessary. The gouty can eat what they like as long as the pill bottle's handy.

Good Company

The gouty can also salvage some perverse satisfaction from the knowledge that they are always in good company.

Henry VII and Queen Anne had gout. So did Alexander the Great, Guy de Maupassant and the first duke of Marlborough. It may have been the habits of some—notably Queen Anne—which encouraged the belief that gout and high living went together.

But suffering and sanctimony have also been mated. Gout hit Martin Luther, John Calvin and John Wesley (John Knox, the Presbyterian, was the only one who escaped, if anything can be made of that.)

Stern Stuff

Calvin, particularly, showed how stern was the stuff of religious pioneers. He also bore up under malaria, stomach trouble, kidney stones, migraine haemoptysis, lung infections, haemorrhoids, renal colic and—not surprisingly—insomnia.

Painful though it is, man has had one answer to gout for centuries. In the 6th century Alexander of Thralles recorded that meadow saffron killed its pain.

Today, doctors use an extract from the autumn crocus (colchicum), and they know it is identical to meadow saffron.

The ancients knew something else. A Greek philosopher named Paul of Aegina (600 A.D.) blamed it on mental tensions. And 300 years before Christ, Hippocrates blamed chalk-stones forming round joints and boney extremities.

Favored Spot

It is safe to say—if the gouty can bear the expression—that Aegina hit the nail on the head. Mental stress does have much to do with it. It is still believed, as well, that Hippocrates' chalk stones (tophi) play their part.

The body has a habit of tucking its excess sodium bicarbonate (chalk) deposits in areas where cartilage predominates. The edge of the outer ear is a favored spot.

The deposits come from an excess of uric acid in the blood. They go to extremities like the big toe. They may cause inflammation. But this isn't all there is to gout, by any means.

Too Intriguing

It is far too intriguing a disease to be dismissed so lightly.

For instance: while it is true that chalky deposits result from uric acid, it doesn't necessarily follow that an excess of uric acid is the cause of gout.

There are puzzles within puzzles because some humans have a high level of uric acid in their blood, and don't get gout. On the other hand, the gouty always have an excess of uric acid.

To solve the puzzle the medic-scientist has to keep looking for unknown factors which determine who will become gout's victim and who will escape.

At Any Age

They know emotional stress, weather, fatigue, or an overdose of certain drugs will trigger gout in some people while the same things won't effect others.

It isn't contagious. It may be inherited. It strikes at any age, but it usually picks on men between 30 and 50.

The scientist would like to know why it is almost unknown in Russia; why it practically disappeared during the war in many parts of Europe, including Britain; and why North Americans are increasingly susceptible to it.

Eternal Puzzle

While they haven't pinned the root causes, science can now control gout as easily as diabetes. Doctors keep it at bay with large doses of aspirin, uricosuric drugs, phenylbutazone and adrenal steroid hormones or ACTH (corticotrophin).

Won't Pay Fees

Airlines Owe $2,500,000 To Canada

OTTAWA (UPI)—Ten foreign airlines have refused to pay the Canadian government some $2,500,000 for the privilege of flying non-stop over Canada, it was disclosed yesterday.

The annual report of the auditor general said that the airlines had "declined to settle accounts" submitted by the federal transport department.

By March 31, the 10 airlines involved owed the government $1,284,000 in fees and the total has been increasing by some $100,000 monthly.

REVENUES CUT

The report said the $64 "route facility fee" for transatlantic and polar flights was needed to maintain the facilities in Canada necessary for the operation and safety of these flights. When these planes land at a Canadian airport the fee is not included in regular landing fees.

Some airlines had even refused to pay landing fees, the report added.

Shot Fired from Moving Car Baffles Team of Policemen

City police rushed to Topaz Avenue early yesterday to check a report that a gun was being fired from a moving car. The car, described as a Dodge about four years old, painted red and white, had gone before police arrived.

Constables searched the area for some time without success.

To the Rescue

Navy's Help Hailed By City Red Cross

The Royal Canadian Navy's willingness to provide blood donors for emergencies was praised during the annual meeting of Victoria city and district branch of the Red Cross last night.

"It has not always been possible to contact donors for emergencies and in every instance the navy has willingly come to the rescue," the report read.

Between clinics and emergencies the navy contributed 948 pints of blood in 1961.

A total of 6,484 blood donations were made along with 227 emergency donations, and 1,711 new donors were registered.

The report showed 406 collections and 532 more new donors than last year.

RECEIPTS DOWN

Annual fund-raising campaign was $3,831 above the 1960 mark, but due to a drop of $4,000 in legacies and special receipts, total receipts were down $7,087.

The loan cupboard service had its busiest year, loaning 602 articles to 357 homes. These included hospital beds, wheelchairs, back rests, bed tables and many smaller sick room essentials.

BIG INCREASE

Homemakers service looked after 348 cases during 1961, a considerable increase over the 1960 total.

The Red Cross Corps fell 30 minutes short of 1,800 hours of service during the year.

Col. M. W. Turner was elected honorary president and Mrs. G. R. Simpson, Mrs. J. L. Grimson, Miss Sara Spencer and the Hon. W. D. Black were elected honorary vice-presidents.

M. L. Fitzgerald was elected president, Maj. Gen. C. R. Stein, first vice-president; Mrs. Bruce Humber, second vice-president; H. E. Geddes, secretary-treasurer, and D. J. Lawson, solicitor.

Health Chief Gets $16,000

REGINA (CP)—A $16,000-a-year salary has been set for the chairman of the Saskatchewan Medical Care Administrative Commission, Health Minister W. G. Davies said Wednesday.

Keep Children Safe PTA, Trustees Ask

Defence Chief

Reeve George Murdoch was appointed chairman of the new Oak Bay civil defence committee at a meeting last night. Other committee members include Councillors Fred Robinson and Walter Dodsworth, Public Health Nurse Mrs. Jessie Bridges, Police Chief Robert Smith, Fire Chief William Pearson.

NANAIMO—Because the danger to children will grow worse, PTA officials and school trustees will go to Victoria to urge provincial government action on an underpass near Mount Benson School.

A public meeting Tuesday called by Mount Benson PTA, with a district school board delegation attending, decided a delegation must be sent to see Premier Bennett and other cabinet officials as soon as possible.

FOUR MEN

The delegation will send a letter to Victoria immediately requesting a hearing with the premier, Highways Minister Gagliardi, Education Minister

Peterson and local MLA Dan Campbell.

A PTA official said yesterday: "We feel the population in this area is growing."

MORE CARS

"That means there will be more cars going at high speeds over that highway and more little children crossing it to get to school. The situation will get worse," he added.

Grits Offered Booster Shot

OTTAWA (CP)—A group of young Liberals from Quebec province is working quietly now to better prepare than the Quebec Liberals were before the 1960 election.

During the last few months, he has visited several provincial Liberal organizations. He said most have adopted the methods of the Quebec Liberals.

This apparent influence held by the Quebec Liberals has enabled them to work on a footing of complete equality with Liberals of other provinces, and it has diminished the influence of some older party leaders in Quebec.

Maurice Sauvé, a Montreal lawyer and economist who political observers say figured largely in provincial victory, was asked why Quebec delegates to the federal party's national council are making the impression on delegates from other provinces.

His reply, in a word: "Results."

Storm Hides 18 Men

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (UPI)—Air force planes were expected to join in the search today for 18 men from a French trawler lost off Newfoundland in a blinding snowstorm for five days.

Hopes of finding the crew of the 210-ton Ravenel alive dimmed yesterday when wreckage and lifebelts were found washed up on a beach on Burin Peninsula. Late snow reduced visibility to zero.

The Ravenel, of St. Pierre, tiny French possession south of Newfoundland, was last heard from Saturday afternoon. The vessel was skippered by Capt. John Cormier, 33.

Early part of the search was made by boats only, as planes at the Torbay, Nfld., air force base were unable to get off the ground because of bad weather.

Winter Work Haphazard Or Effective?

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal MP Paul Martin accused the government Wednesday of a "haphazard, laissez-faire" approach to winter unemployment.

Labor Minister Starr said 111,500 men have averaged 45 days each this winter and projects worth $762,000,000 have been built in four years.

Senator Opposes Pensions Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Senator Thomas Crerar said Wednesday he is opposed to the federal government's proposal to increase the basic old age pension to $65 a month from $55.

The Manitoba senator also said in the Senate Throne Speech debate that he would be opposed to any Liberal government boosting the pension to $75 a month unless it is based on the contributory principle.

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker was reported to have expressed doubt Wednesday that President Kennedy's tariff-cutting program will clear the United States congress.

Members of a 75-man farm delegation said he took the view he would be surprised if the Kennedy proposals designed to reduce tariff barriers multilaterally in reaction to the European Common Market influence — got congressional approval.

'Tariff Slash Won't Pass'

MAJOR ITEMS

The market and Britain's entry negotiations with it are major items discussed as the National Farmers Union made its annual submission to the federal cabinet.

'BEST ANSWER'

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said "the civil service can rest assured there will be no loss of employment" resulting from the investigation into government operations by the Glassco royal commission.

He made the statement in connection with rumors the commission has found over-staffing in certain government departments and this will lead to heavy layoffs.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker also said Canada's policy of continued trade and diplomatic relations with Fidel Castro's regime was unchanged by a decision of the hemisphere foreign ministers to exclude Cuba from inter-American activities.

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada does not intend to issue a postage stamp to commemorate Christmas because of the government's policy to promote religious tolerance and mutual respect, Parliament was told yesterday.

Can't Interpret Lesage Without a Party Card

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons heard Wednesday three interpretations from as many MPs — each of different political hue — of what Quebec Premier Lesage meant by his reply to Prime Minister Diefenbaker on the power-grid question.

When the prime minister suggested talks on a national grid, Mr. Lesage said "this is a field of provincial jurisdiction and I consider that is where we must let the matter rest."

Arnold Peters (CCF — Timiskaming) said this is the constitutional "out" the federal government is looking for.

"A political response," said Hugh Horner (PC — Jasper-Edson), who said the grid will go ahead anyway.

Augustin Brassard (L — La-pointe) said Mr. Lesage had not shut the door.

Christmas Stamp Avoided

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada does not intend to issue a postage stamp to commemorate Christmas because of the government's policy to promote religious tolerance and mutual respect, Parliament was told yesterday.

Society 'Plagued' By Discount Houses

Discount houses are a plague on B.C. society and work on "the principle of a sucker list where you pay for your own advertising," Jim Rhodes (NDP-CCF — Delta) told the legislature this week.

He said customers paid a $2. business? They can't survive, he said. "They are creating a dog eat dog society," he complained.

OPEN TO COMPETE

He charged that in Surrey, where discount houses started in B.C., they open from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m. and that supermarkets and other places are forced to stay open to compete.

"They are breaking up family life and starting a social problem where parents never get time to see their children. How about the corner grocery, who relies on after 6 p.m.

Big Store Squeeze Charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Reports here say the Federal Combines Investigation Branch will hold hearings next month into charges that Vancouver department stores attempted to squeeze out competition from a discount house.

COMPLAINT LAID

They say the complaint was laid by Hamilton Harvey and Son Ltd., which sells a wide variety of merchandise at discount prices.

It is understood the complaint involves Woodward's Stores, Eaton's, and the Hudson's Bay Co., the story says.

Boss Quits for Staff

BRANTFORD, Ont. (UPI)—J. J. Phillips, general manager of a Brantford company sold to U.S. interests, said yesterday he resigned Monday because 600 employees will be laid off with what he considers not enough severance pay.

Mr. Phillips, general manager and vice-president of Cockburn Farm Equipment Ltd., turned in his resignation just before shareholders approved sale of the firm to White Motor Co. of Cleveland.

He said the firm would soon lay off 600 workers at about one-third of the severance pay they should get. He said the company had proposed payments totalling about $301,000 but he felt the pay should be at least $1,000,000.

President Ralph Tees said he did not know how many employees were to be laid off, but all would get regular separation pay plus severance pay over and above that.

Essondale Fire Kills Man

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—Fire broke out in an annex of the colony farm at the provincial mental hospital at Essondale last night, causing the death of one patient and evacuation of 123 others from the burning building.

Dead is Stanley Pearce, 48, who apparently died of asphyxiation in the smoke-filled Riverside annex. He had been a patient at the institution since 1949.

Staff at the hospital evacuated the other 123 male patients in less than four minutes. No injuries were reported.

Bonds Pledge More Rally To UN Aid

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Denmark, Norway and Sweden informed Acting Secretary-General U Thant Wednesday that they will buy more than $10,000,000 worth of UN bonds to help ease the financial crisis of the world organization.

The total pledged by the three Scandinavian governments is more than twice their share of the regular UN budget under the approved scale of assessments. Canada has already pledged to buy $6,240,000 worth of the bonds, which corresponds to the Canadian assessment in the regular budget. The action followed President Kennedy's message to Congress Tuesday asking for authorization for the U.S. government to buy $100,000,000 worth of the bonds. Britain has pledged to buy $12,000,000 worth.

U.S. to Probe 'Astonishing War Hoard'

Kennedy Halts New Purchases

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy announced yesterday he has initiated a full-scale investigation of how the United States built up an "astonishing" $7,700,000,000 stockpile of strategic materials—nearly twice the amount needed for a major war.

He told a news conference the "excessive" hoard of raw materials like aluminum and nickel is "a potential source of... unconscionable profits."

Asked whether there was any suggestion of wrongdoing by any individual, the President replied thoughtfully:

"No, I am not making any implication. I think the whole matter should be looked into—contracts and all the rest, profits and so on... it is a matter which lends itself to a careful scrutiny."

PURCHASES STOPPED

Kennedy said he has halted new purchases for the defence stockpile, except for three items which are still critically short. He did not identify these.

PROBE CALLED

In a volunteered statement at the opening of the news conference, he said a special Senate committee, headed by Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), has agreed to conduct a full investigation of the situation "without delay."

COLD FACTS

"The cold facts on this matter must be open to the public," Kennedy said.

While he did not pinpoint the time when the "excessive" stockpile purchases were made, Kennedy said he began "looking into" the matter after he took office last year.

ESTIMATES EXCEEDED

He said he made the "astonishing" discovery that the material already stockpiled exceeds present estimates of emergency requirements by $3,400,000,000. In some cases, he said, the government had acquired seven times the amount of material that could possibly be used, even in war conditions.

Kennedy promised that the government will take no action regarding the stockpile which might upset or disrupt current commodity market prices for raw materials involved.

RUSSIAN WELCOMED

Among the 420 newsmen at the conference was Russian Alexei Adzhubel, editor of Izvestia and son-in-law of Soviet Premier Khrushchev. Kennedy took note of his presence, and welcomed him.

Finger Hunt Pays Off

Emergency cars made double runs in each of two accidents yesterday—both times to recover missing finger-tips lost by two boys in separate accidents.

Shortly before 3 p.m. Teddy Cook, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Cook, 225 Robertson, lost the tip of a finger when he caught it in a door at home. He and his mother were rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital by city police.

HOME AGAIN

Almost immediately, another police car sped back to the house, found the missing finger-tip and took it to the hospital.

CHURCH MISHAP

At about 8.25 p.m. Jim Bugslag, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Bugslag, 1401 Oliver, lost part of his finger when it was caught between two kitchen carts in the hall of Oak Bay United Church.

The Oak Bay Fire Department emergency car took him to the same hospital—and hurried back to the hall where the missing tip was found on one of the carts.

This was also rushed back to the hospital emergency ward, but a hospital spokesman said the part was too small for a successful suturing job, so Jim was admitted for a skin-graft operation. His condition is satisfactory.

The Show Must Go On

Death Defied Again

DETROIT (AP)—Herman Gunther and his son Gunther performed Wednesday night on the same high wire from which two aerialists of the Great Wallendas troupe fell to their death Tuesday night.

The 60-year-old Herman and his 34-year-old son teamed up with aerialist Jean Mendez, who was flown in Wednesday to fill the Shrine Circus gap left by the tragedy that befell the Wallendas.

Besides the two killed, three others of the Wallenda troupe, which dates its beginning back to 1780, were all injured; one of them is near death.

Mendez was first Wednesday on the high wire three storeys above the concrete floor of the Fairgrounds Coliseum in Detroit. He was followed by Herman, and then Gunther Wallenda.

Gunther rode a bike across the wire and teamed up with Mendez to carry Herman standing on a cross bar between them. In the finale, Herman stood on his head on the bar.

A crowd of approximately 5,000 gave the trio a howling ovation.

The Wallendas were a part of the matinee performance. At first, producer Al DeBitch said they couldn't go on the high wire "not today or tonight, maybe tomorrow."

But they persisted and DeBitch finally agreed they could go on.

Ten Killed In Crash

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—Ten farm laborers were killed Wednesday night when a Southern Pacific freight train and a bus collided in thick fog at Mendota, 50 miles west of here. Only one passenger aboard the bus survived.

Algiers Tense

Anarchy Fear Rises After Daring Raids

ALGIER (Reuters)—Seven daring holdups blamed on the right-wing secret army were staged in Algeria Wednesday. As the feeling of anarchy heightened, airlines cancelled night flights to and from Algiers.

European Tommy-gunners raided four banks, a public works office and a cigarette factory in Algiers in an apparent build-up of funds for the terrorist fight to bar Algeria's independence.

A seventh raid took place in Oran in western Algeria. Authorities said the equivalent of $130,000 was taken.

32 Moslems Break Jail

BILDA, Algeria (Reuters)—Thirty-two Moslems, including 14 condemned to death, escaped from jail yesterday. Complicity of some prison guards was not ruled out, police said.

France Faces Critical Four Weeks

PARIS (Reuters)—February will be the crucial month in President de Gaulle's three-year campaign to lead Algeria to peace and independence, observers said here Wednesday.

At the end of this week, it was learned here, the Algerian insurgent "provisional government" will meet in Tunis to decide whether to accept French proposals for a cease-fire in Algeria and co-operate with the French during a transition period which would lead to a referendum on Algerian independence.

Sources close to de Gaulle made it clear Wednesday that despite lengthy secret negotiations, the Moslem insurgents, at war with France for seven years, have made no definite commitments.

'Fresh Look'

Lord's Day Act Changes Called

TORONTO (CP)—The Lord's Day Alliance, in a brief to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, has called for a sweeping modernization of the Lord's Day Act.

The brief, presented to the prime minister last Friday and made public Wednesday, proposes:

● The amount of advertising by broadcasting be regulated in fairness to "other media of advertising which may not engage in Sunday business."

● That "Dominion law" take cognizance of the volume of public opinion in favor of Sunday sport and entertainment and make provision for it.

● That consideration be given to the development of long-distance trucking "and also to automation in manufacturing, vending, etc., which is being accelerated in these times."

NEW APPROACH

The need for "fresh attention to Sunday law" becomes apparent, the brief says, "when note is made of the fact that the Lord's Day Act deals with such minor matters as hiring a small boat or a horse and carriage but has nothing to say about aeroplanes, or trucks, or radio and television broadcasting."

The Empty Chair

Cuba Expulsion Unites Council

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—Twenty of the 21 countries in the Organization of American States—all but Cuba—signed a document Wednesday night condemning Premier Castro's Cuban regime.

The final act pulled the OAS—minus Cuba—back together again after the United States had won only a bare majority of 14 to bar Cuba from OAS functions.

Uruguay's foreign minister, Homero Martinez Montero, then closed the 10-day conference of OAS foreign ministers after the final act was approved 20 to 0.

The 6,000-word document, drafted in the heat of prolonged and sometimes bitter negotiations, included an order to the OAS council in Washington to act at once to cut Cuba away from the OAS. This step was backed by the 14-nation majority.

CUBANS WALK OUT
But all 20 countries that sat here to judge Cuba put their names to the condemnation of Castro's regime as incompatible with the American system. Castro's delegation walked out in the closing hours of the session and flew off to Havana.

'DEFEAT FOR U.S.'
Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos left behind a claim that the outcome meant "a defeat for U.S. imperialism" and transformation of the OAS into a bloc dominated by U.S. interests.

Indians to Be Taught How to Be-Indians

DUNCAN—The University of British Columbia will team up with the federal government to teach Indian chiefs how to be Indians.

Two women and a man representing UBC's extension department and the Indian affairs branch of the citizenship and immigration department will undertake the "leadership workshop" for chiefs and band councillors later this month.

Main objects of the workshop, according to officials, will be to teach chiefs and councillors their functions and show them how to manage Indian affairs.

'Faith Healer Failed to Rid Rooming House of the Devil'

MONTREAL (UPI)—Medora Martin, 57, told a court yesterday she paid a faith healer $400 to rid her rooming house of evil spirits, but that the Devil is still there.

Mrs. Martin denied she had ever told Leopold St. Pierre that the house was cursed. She said she went to St. Pierre's office and said among other things that she had a rooming house and that she had difficulty getting good roomers.

She said St. Pierre, who maintains a downtown office to see "sufferers," looked at the four corners of the house and announced that the curse had been put there by two women and that it would take $1,200 to chase the curse of the Devil from this house.

"And I suppose you still own the house and the Devil is still in residence there," said Judge John O'Meara.

"I still own the house and as far as I know the Devil is still there," she answered with a smile.

Officials Goof

Fired Man Gets Pension

OTTAWA (CP)—A 27-year-old corporal fired as an "administrative nuisance" was granted a life pension worth $27,000.

This was one of a number of irregularities disclosed by Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson in his report to Parliament covering the 1960-61 fiscal year.

Some others:

The defence production department paid $62,000 for storage space in which nothing was stored.

A high speed wind tunnel project begun in 1954 at an estimated cost of $3,750,000 is now likely to cost $9,000,000 and is still not complete.

Three RCAF aircraftmen opened the wrong valves and 167,000 gallons of aviation gasoline worth $44,600 drained away down a manhole.

Money Down Drain

A war veteran with an income of $33,000 a year was granted a $15,179 loan under the Veteran's Land Act "to consolidate his loan."

A woman civil servant who lied about her age, worked for five years beyond retirement age, got the benefit of an increased pension, retired in December of 1960, and was rehired a month later at the age of 70.

A $42,000,000 acreage payment to Prairie farmers, voted by Parliament "as a higher return for wheat used for human consumption in Canada," was paid to growers irrespective of whether their land was planted to wheat, oats or barley or was left in summer fallow.

An "airick" 37-year-old pilot was granted a pension worth $69,000 after being retired "by reason of having become disabled."

U.S. Ad Men Softened Warnings About Drugs

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. Senate drug investigators said Wednesday a New York advertising agency softened warnings about drugs that might cause blood disorders and certain male characteristics in female babies.

Chairman Estes Kefauver of the Senate anti-trust subcommittee said the ad agency, L. W. Frohlich, Inc., "very substantially modified a warning that extended use of chloromycetin, a high-selling antibiotic, could lead to serious blood disorders."

Herman Schwartz, subcommittee counsel, said the agency failed to say in some ads for the drug norlutin that it could produce male features in the genitals of female babies.

30 Paintings To Bring $2,000,000

LONDON (AP)—Author W. Somerset Maugham's multi-million-dollar collection of French paintings has been flown here from his Riviera home to be auctioned off in April.

The 30 paintings have been valued at more than $2,000,000. Experts expect one of them, Picasso's "Death of a Harlequin," to bring at least $350,000.

Indian Sees 'Devotion'

Best Possible Faculty Attracted to Varsity

Victoria University is vying with the greatest universities in North America to bring the best possible instructors to its faculty.

Dr. Izud Din Pal, here from India to introduce courses in international trade and advanced economics, said yesterday the university had added faculty at prices "that were competitive with anywhere in the North American continent."

BOY OF DEVOTION

Since his arrival here in September, Dr. Pal said, he has been impressed by the manner in which Victoria University officials are working to make the university grow.

COULD CHANGE

He said a university with a student body of 5,000 could change the whole structure of Victoria.

Dr. Pal said he would like to see a second independent university in B.C. and added Victoria, as B.C.'s capital, would be the ideal place for its location.

Mothers on March For Hour Tonight

At least 2,400 marching mothers of the local branch of the Polioomyelitis and Rehabilitation Foundation of B.C. will embark on their annual one-hour torchlight campaign at 6:30 p.m. today.

The mothers hope to visit every house in Greater Victoria during the one-hour appeal. Last year $26,000 was collected in this area.

Builders May Miss Coming Float Boom

Building contractors in the Greater Victoria area may be missing out on additional work brought on by the centennial year.

A number of inquiries have been made to the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association by local businessmen on whether there is a list of contractors available to build floats for the Victoria Day parade.

More floats are expected this year than ever before, an association spokesman said. Floats will be decorated on the centenary of progress theme.

Interested contractors may give their names to the association at EV 23912 and the information will be passed on the spokesman said.

Price Above Value

High Cost of Land Stalls Off-Street Parking Plans

Hopes that concrete action could be taken yesterday toward building two off-street parking garages downtown apparently foundered on finance.

The city parking commission had hoped to have matters far enough along to be discussed in council, but the mayor sent word that things had not reached the proper stage.

City clerk Frank Hunter told aldermen who arrived at city hall to attend a special 4 p.m. council meeting.

MAKING PROGRESS

"We are making excellent progress," Mayor Wilson reported after the meeting ended, but the colonist learned one of the main reasons the special council meeting was cancelled was because agreement could not be reached over the cost of land.

Owners of land chosen as the site for one of the two garages are reported asking a price well above the assessed value of the property.

SITE OCCUPIED

And the second site favored by the commission is occupied by a firm which doesn't want to move out and which would have to incur unusually high moving costs.

The special council meeting convened by Mayor Wilson was cancelled shortly after 4 p.m. Ald. Austin Curtis, Ald. Millard Mooney and Ald. A. W. Toome had attended.

SOMETHING CONCRETE

"I hope before too long we will have something concrete," Mayor Wilson said. "We had a good discussion and got a lot of information but we reached no conclusions."

The off-street parking plan—estimated at $1,115,000 to build parking space for 800 cars—was approved last August by property owners in the downtown area.

Mayor Wilson has pressed for action to implement the bylaw since taking office in January.

Bennett Awaits Ferry Ruling

Premier Bennett still is awaiting word from Ottawa about the prospects of a 40 per cent federal shipbuilding subsidy for the new government ferries.

The premier has sent another telegram to Ottawa on the subject and until a reply is received no decision can be made as to which engines should be used in the two ships to be built this year by Victoria Machinery Depot.

The English firm of Ruston and Hornsby submitted the low bid for the engines but a telegram from the federal Maritime Commission said the federal subsidy could not be guaranteed unless the low Canadian bidder was given the job.

In Ottawa Tuesday Transport Minister Leon Balcer said the subsidy would be determined on the amount of Canadian content in the ferries.

During January

Skating and Sun Marked Weather

All in all January was a pretty good month for weather. Victoria had more sun than average, less rain—and a few good days' skating.

January brought 2.87 inches of rain, which is well below the 5.82 inches of January, 1961, and under the normal 3.99-inch fall.

The sun shone for 91.3 hours, and although that is less than the 103.4 hours of a year ago, it's well above the average of 70 hours.

Snowfall for the month totaled 4.1 inch. Last year there was none at all in January, but the normal for the month is five inches.

Warmest day of the month was Jan. 30, when the mercury climbed to 55 degrees. On Jan. 25, 1961, it hit the same peak.

Centennial Fort

First decoration of store premises using the centennial theme is this model fort built around the Royal Oak Drug Store in Saanich. Work was completed this week and the fort will remain for the city's centennial year. A city businessman this week announced plans to build a similar false front to his Port Street store.—(Colonist photo.)

Cluster-Light Job Past Halfway Point

More than half the city's lighting engineer Kenneth Reid said last night.

Deadline for the work is the end of April. Workmen have repaired 378 lights and another 318 have yet to be done.

The program of installing mercury vapor lamps as supplementary lighting is almost 85 per cent completed with 167 units installed.

Mr. Reid said all conversion units to make birthday candles out of some 100 cluster lights standards have been fabricated and will be installed by the end of February.

City's Share Near $20,000 In Pair of Area Budgets

Victoria's share of two inter-municipal budgets sent to city hall yesterday would be almost $20,000.

The Capital Region Planning Board submitted a $32,262

budget, of which the city share would be $10,361.

And the juvenile detention home submitted a $13,342 budget with the city's share estimated at $6,605.

One High School Island Area Plan

COURTENAY — A plan to centralize the high school system in order to provide a better program of academic, general, technical and vocational programs has been formulated by trustees here.

The same plan would provide junior high schools in Courtenay, Comox, Cumberland and Tofino with Grade 10 as the top grade, leaving Grades 11 to 13 for the high school.

Figures indicate enrollments in the high school and junior high schools by September would be about the same as now are enrolled in the various district high schools.

The board feels that, while all schools provide a sound educational program, the lack of numbers at the senior level imposes limitations on the breadth of course offerings available to meet the needs of NANAIMO — An insurance adjuster has warned any one using Nanaimo's Grandview Bowl should have a liability insurance policy.

Roy McAlpine told the civic properties and recreation commission that groups using the area should get their own insurance.

Ignore Bruton, He Says But Varsity Critic Didn't

POINT COUNTER POINT: Recently we had occasion to remark on the mentality of certain Victoria University students who stole the centennial sign from city hall.

This led to the following critical "evaluation" of our daily efforts, written by one George Lamont, which appears in the latest issue of The Martlet, the college newspaper. We reprint it here in its entirety:

It seems to me, that even the long suffering public, which has proved itself able to put up with practically any kind of drivel, could hardly stomach the wealth of inanity that pours daily from the lower right hand corner of the second section of Victoria's morning newspaper. This collection of vacant anecdotes and overheard gossip is called "Peter Bruton's Notebook."

Material for this insult to readers of this otherwise commendable newspaper, seems to stem from a few main sources: the provincial attorney-general (the writer must have a direct line into Mr. Bonner's office), the local cable society, such as it is, and students of Victoria College. It is not the intention of this work to dwell on the latter, since the students have suffered at the hands of the "Notebook," but let us take a close look at the column in general, and for two specific issues, those of Jan. 30 and 21.

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

First, in the issue of Jan. 20, a veteran's house gets painted free for a new owner by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, and the columnist invents a most inane conversation to cover the situation. Apparently, a man who works for this corporation has a habit of saying, "Yep..." Perhaps he does. To try to give some valuation for wasting four inches of the newspaper's space, Mr. Bruton, obviously imagining himself the Jonathan Swift of Twentieth Century irony, adds, "Well, it's nice to see where our taxes go."

His final (thank goodness) line is a note of the sign stealing "affair," is, to be quite honest, garbled, and presumptuous. He knows (or he should know) that the taxpayers are not going to be stuck with the cost of replacing the centennial sign, but he gets out his violin and plays a mournful tune to that effect. The remainder of the space filler for the day was devoted to the beleaguered attorney-general, neither of the two columns could be more empty or vacuous in thought.

Secondly, the issue of Jan. 21 had little more to recommend it for content, so I will consider the style and presentation, briefly. Each item, generally, is set off from the rest by three little stars, and a "catch sub-headline." Mr. Bruton, probably trying very hard to emulate the widely enjoyed Vancouver gossip columnist Jack Wasserman and Jack Scott, inserts these sub-headlines after the manner of his heroes. The results are really (pitiful) (pitiful) to behold. "Reversed charges" heads a paraphrased and quoted letter from a Victoria College student; "The Flip Side" — introduces the most amateur lesson in economics ever assembled in the language; "Thanks For The Memory" — brings in a story about a third hand reported exchange of tempers, which, if you were to recite at a gathering of even halfwits, would cause you to blush with embarrassment at having stood up and recited several sentences with no other connection than the word "belonging" to the English language; Mr. Bruton is called upon to fill two inches, this article entitled, "Depends Where You Sit."

These four titles have only the slightest if any relation to the items they introduce, all of which are a study in irrelevance and literary nonsense. There is one small glimmer of hope in the last, inch-long item, amazingly called "Isolation Cure," about the Doukhobor problem. If he wrote this himself, in an unguarded moment of rationality, it approaches worthiness of publication. Alas, it is only one inch, but a start nevertheless.

Thirdly, it is evident, by reasonable standards, that Mr. Bruton's "Notebook" is ill-thought out, rarely substantiated, poorly constructed, bereft of real matter, and worst of all, so prejudiced that objective consideration of his personal negativism, editorial outbursts, and irrational judgments, is impossible.

Thus, a sensible attitude toward this kind of rabble-rousing is: "Don't pay any attention, it's just the scribbling, nonsense and drivel in the local gossip column." And it is not even good gossip!

TALE PIECES: There's nothing we're going to add, except to quote the editorial sentence in an editorial appearing in the same paper.

With TWIP Week in a fever of activity and the females of the campus in a compensatory mood, the campus is in a state of excitement.
